

In past issues we have looked at The Wide World of Critters, but until recently I, hadn't given much thought to US critters that had gone abroad. It was not any great surprise to learn, for example, that there were Plymouths in Puerto Rico and Argentina. But France and Italy!? In most cases it seems these European Plymouths are survivors of some former US base or other operation in the region.

If anyone has additional information on US critters abroad, or anything critterly that might be of interest to CC readers, please feel free to contact me via the magazine or directly at critrcornr@aol.com.

— Until Next Time, High-Ball

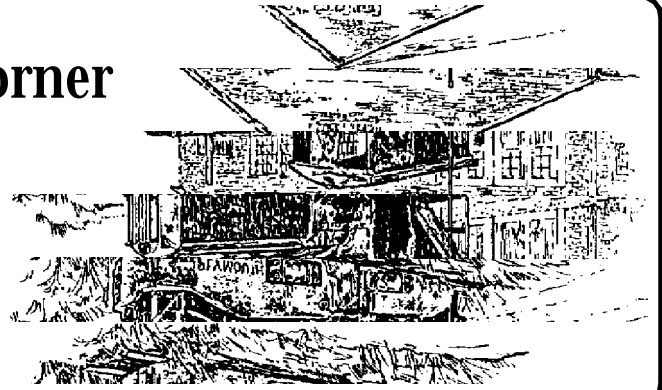

Photos below and right. This Plymouth is at Templeuve France. Photos by Steve Thomason.

Critter Corner

with J.R. Welsh

Critters Abroad...

Bottom left is a davenport in Puerto Rico, It is part of a museum operation in San Juan. Photo by Eduardo Alvarez.

Photo below. Center cab CR8 6421 at Central Aguirre. Sister units 6420 & 6199 were parted out and 6421 was sold to the Dominican Republic. Photo by Roger Aponte.

